

OUSTED PRINTING CHIEFS TO DEMAND EXPLANATION

Delegation Headed by Director Wilmett to Call at White House and Ask for Public Statement.

SPECIAL INQUIRY BY HOUSE ALSO SOUGHT

Democratic Senator Presents Resolution Calling on Harding to Explain Alleged Violation of Civil Service Law.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—After a conference with Democratic members of the House, James L. Wilmett, director, and others included among the 28 chiefs, superintendents and foremen of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, removed from office Friday by presidential order, announced today that they would appear at the White House this afternoon and demand from President Harding a public explanation of their removal. The men went to the White House, but the President was playing golf, and they said they would return later in the day.

Senator Demands Reasons.

Denouncing as "outrageous" the executive order by which the President last Friday night dismissed from the Government service the director and 31 other officials, Senator Caraway, Democrat, of Arkansas, introduced a resolution this afternoon calling on the President to give the reasons for the order and the authority under which he acted. The resolution went over.

Caraway charged that the President had exceeded the power which provides that no employee shall be ousted from the classified civil service without having been given a written copy of the charges against him. He added that Attorney-General Daugherty, whom he dismissed as always a "plant" official in the service of the administration, was now making an investigation in an effort to find some grounds that would justify the President's action before the country.

Caraway branded the President's overnight dismissal of the 32 officials as a proceeding that harked back to the "star chamber" days of 400 years ago. No man, he asserted, should be dismissed without knowing the charges against him. It looked as if the President had acted, he said either because he wanted to fill the places of the dismissed men with "deserving Republicans" or because some enemy of the men had the executive ear. "Thirty-odd men," said Caraway, "unright men, so far as the record shows, men of standing in the community, men of long service, some of them men with families, have been dismissed and disgraced by a night order with no other explanation than that it was for the good of the service."

"This is equivalent to saying there was something wrong with their character or efficiency. No reputable employer will take in one of the men till the facts have become known."

President Not Above Law.

Demanding that the President in justice to men give his reasons, Caraway said: "The President is not above the law. If he overrode the law he disgraces himself more than the men he discharges."

Caraway gave a brief biography of several of the ousted men. One of them, George L. Rose, dismissed from the headship of the engraving division, Rose had been in the Government service for 39 years, having been promoted through both Democratic and Republican administrations.

Investigation by a special House committee to determine whether the dismissal was justified, was proposed in a resolution introduced today by Representative Moore, Democrat, of Virginia.

Moore asked that a committee be appointed by the Speaker to ascertain why the executive order was issued and whether any investigation at conditions at the bureau preceded its promulgation.

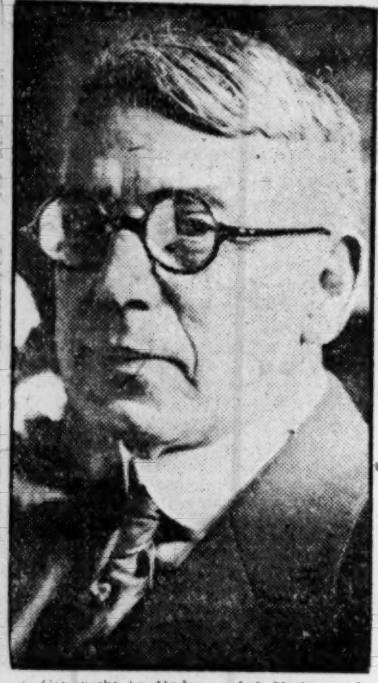

The resolution also seeks to have determined whether "the facts indicate that the order may be regarded as a statement of the direction of a return to the discrediting spoils system."

Declaring that the Government departments were "reeking with dishonesty to the administration," Senator John W. Harrell, Republican of Oklahoma, announced after a call at the White House today that he would demand dismissal of all Government employees who were not in thorough accord with the administration.

"I hope the President will keep it up," Harrell said, adding, however, that he had not discussed the dismissal of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

WOMAN WORLD TOURIST, 70, USED A BIG STICK

Miss C. I. Miller of Chicago, Returning From Third Trip Taken Alone, Tells of Experiences.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 3.—Following an idea established a number of years ago by President Roosevelt to "speak softly but carry a big stick," a pleasant elderly woman returning from a world tour arrived in town yesterday. She says she has applied the energy back of it for more than once in her travels, the last occasion in Manila, Philippine Islands.

She is Miss Celeste J. Miller of Chicago and arrived on the Red Star steamship Lapland, from Antwerp. Almost 70 years old, although she does not appear so, Miss Miller carries at all times a big stick, and there are pluck and courage in her eyes.

"There is no place I will not go and go alone," Miss Miller told reporters yesterday, relating incidents of her trip. According to her story, this is her third trip around the world in 10 years. In all her travels she estimates she has traveled 500,000 miles.

Not Still for 40 Years.

"For over 40 years I have not been still," said Miss Miller. "I have traveled on more than 250 different large steamers on the seven seas. I have never missed a train or a boat. I have had my own caravans in Morocco, Palestine and Arabia and when I crossed the Andes by trail, the first American woman to do so."

Yesterday she told of the last time she used the big stick. In Manila, some months ago, two men accosted her and demanded money. They were ugly and took advantage of her years. Down came the big stick, and one of the robbers saw more stars than the Egyptian heavens. The other took to his heels.

"And that is not the only time I have had occasion to use it," she said. "I have used it on dragons in the desert. It is a good thing to carry. If you have the courage to use it. I have."

Has Been in 30,000 Churches.

Miss Miller is fond of churches and buildings given over to forms of religious worship. She says she has visited more than 30,000 cathedrals, temples, mosques, shrines and churches throughout the world.

"I have taken my sleep whenever and where I could get it, under all sorts of difficulties, and have slept in the same quarters with sheeps, geese, donkeys and horses," she said.

"One must put up with many things when one searches the innermost corners of the earth."

She is fond of the Orient. Miss Miller said her father was H. H. Miller, one of the pioneers of Illinois, who made a fortune in real estate in the early days of Chicago.

"He was one of Abraham Lincoln's pals," said Miss Miller, and she has many personal anecdotes of the martyred President.

Miss Miller is about 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighs about 170 pounds. She was born in Chicago.

"I'll carry this stick with me until I die," she concluded. "But I hope to be here for many more years, and there are still some places in the world I have not seen."

ORNATE WHISKY FLASK ASSERTION NOT FAR WRONG

Obliging Stationery Clerk Would Get One for Each Congressman if He Expressed Desire for It.

NICE POKER SETS ALSO AVAILABLE

Fund of $125 to Each Member for "Stationery" at Each Term Used for Many Purposes.

By CHARLES G. ROSS, Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Representative Thomas L. Blanton of Texas, heretofore celebrated in these columns as "the most unpopular man in the House," which he is (and despite that distinction, or as a corollary to it, a useful citizen) was not far wrong when he said in a recent speech at Austin that every Congressman was furnished with an ornate liquor flask at the expense of the Government, and that "Uncle Joe" Cannon had received 120 chests of pine, oak and cedar during his long term of office.

Blanton, like a good caricaturist, has a way of exaggerating to get his effects and in his speech about the petty grafts in Congress, euphemistically called perquisites, he may have adopted that method, but he had a solid basis of fact nevertheless.

It is not quite accurate to say that every Congressman is furnished with an ornate liquor flask out of the public funds. Doubtless there are a good many who don't crave liquor flasks and would not have one on any terms—the Anti-Saloon League might be looking for them. But it is true that every Congressman who wants a liquor flask, plain or ornate, large or small, can get one, and the public "wets" and "drys" alike will foot the bill.

How "Flasks" Are Obtained.

This comes about through the fact that every Congressman for every session is given a "stationery" allowance of $125. Thus he gets a minimum of $250 for each Congress in which he serves, and if he takes three sessions he gets $750. For the war Congress the allowance amounted to $375 and for the last Congress the same amount. During the presidential campaign, now about a year old, the members have already been credited with $250 each and next December, at the opening of the new session, they will have an additional $125 each.

If a Congressman chooses he may take the cash and let the credit go. A good many do this, for if there is anything else to pick up around the Capitol it is paper and envelopes. Besides, each member of Congress belongs to one or more committees and is authorized to use committee stationery. Why, in that case, should one who is thrifty use his own? Look at the next letter you get from a Congressman and see if it isn't on the letterhead of some committee.

"Stationery," as construed in Congress, is an elastic term. It includes, of course, paper and envelopes and all sorts of desk supplies. It includes also virtually anything that a Congressman may want that comes within the price limit of his stationery allowance. He may get, as Blanton said, a whiskey flask, as a number of Congressmen did during the last Christmas season, when the obliging stationery room, situated in the House office building and manned by Government paid clerks, has a lot of novelties and knickknacks for the accommodation of their customers.

Stationery Room Obliging.

If the obliging stationery room has not in stock what a Congressman calls for, a fishing rod, for example, or a pair of silk stockings or a safety razor, it will send down an order to the charge of the price, which is the cost price and therefore less than the article would cost in a store, against his stationery allowance.

If he wanted a ton of coal and had a sufficient balance to cover it, the stationery room would get it for him. Nobody has ever called for a ton of coal yet, but that does not argue that the thing couldn't be done.

In the matter of purchasing "stationery" conscience alone is the Congressman's guide.

Blanton never overlooks an opportunity in or out of Congress to tell Congress what he thinks about stationery and other such perquisites. That's one reason why he is the most unpopular man in Congress and is getting more so every day. He shouts

ARGUMENT OVER REPAIRING BLOWOUT, DISTURBS SLEEPERS

Four Young Men Arrested for Disturbance at Academy and Enright Avenues.

Seventeen telephone calls from residents of the vicinity of Academy and Enright avenues, who complain of a terrible hubbub in the street, were recorded at the Page Boulevard Police Station within a few minutes after 5 a. m. today.

A wagon load of police found four young men gathered about the blown tire of an automobile. Each was endeavoring to detail procedure to repair the damage, their voices raised in chorus to slumber-disturbing pitch in the vicinity.

They were alight and irate voices from open windows accentuated the general clamor.

A young man, who said he was August Schrader, 22, 3572 South Broadway, said he was the owner of the car, but that he and his companions were amateurs at patching tires. All were arrested, charged with peace disturbance.

FIVE INDICTMENTS IN THE KNICKERBOCKER THEATER CASE

Four Others Ordered Held by Coroner's Jury Exonerated—Manslaughter Charged.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Five of the nine men held by the Coroner's jury as responsible for the collapse, Jan. 25, of the Knickerbocker Theater, with the loss of 98 lives, were indicted today by the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter. The other four were exonerated by the jury, determining their connection with the construction of the building not sufficient to make them criminally liable.

Those indicted are: Reginald W. Geare, architect of the theater; John Howard Ford of the Union Iron Works, who revised the original plans for the steel roof structure; Donald Wallace, general foreman for Frank L. Wagner, contractor for the construction of the theater; Richard G. Fletcher, foreman for the Hammitt Fireproofing Co., which had the subcontract for cement and mason work; and Julian R. Bowman, assistant building inspector during the period of the theater's construction.

A collection of wolf and other furs was sold at prices 25 per cent higher than last fall's, bringing the total sales to about $500,000.

CARPENTERS AT MASS MEETING VOTE 10 PCT. WAGE CUT

Reduction From $1.25 to $1.12 1/2 an Hour Declared to Be "Last Word" to Master Builders.

ACTION FIXES SCALE HERE FOR ONE YEAR

Chairman of Wage Arbitration Board of Builders Accuses Union Leaders of Displaying Bad Faith.

Union carpenters in mass meeting yesterday at First Regiment Armory, Grand avenue and Market street, voted by an overwhelming majority to reduce their wages, effective at once, 10 per cent, from $1.25 to $1.12 1/2 an hour.

The action also cuts the wages of foremen from $1.37 1/2 to $1.25 and senior apprentices from $1 to 90 cents. It was estimated by the union leaders that 1700 of the 3200 carpenters in the building trades attended the meeting.

The vote fixes the union carpenters' wage scale for one year and union leaders say it is the final answer to the Master Builders' Association which announced a maximum wage of 95 cents an hour, effective last Saturday.

Assessment to Be Levied.

Following the vote, Harry J. Lindeman, chairman of the Carpenters' District Council, announced that an assessment of 12 1/2 cents an hour against carpenters employed under the support of any workmen who may be locked out by the general contractor, to enforce the 95 cents scale. Lindeman also announced that all men who may strike or be locked out must report, beginning tomorrow, at the Carpenters' District Council, 304 Olive street, and register, to become eligible for strike benefits.

The meeting was orderly and not a voice was raised in support of the action proposed by the general contractors. Most of those who did speak objected to any reduction at all, but the five members of the board of business agents were in the majority and the vote was carried by a 10 per cent reduction, explaining that they could no longer afford to ignore the pressure that had been brought to bear upon the union for contractors.

Arthur J. Widmer, chairman of the Wage Arbitration Board of the Master Builders' Association, today said the action taken at the meeting was a "display of bad faith" by the union leaders, who he said had promised him to submit the question of arbitration to a mass meeting of the men for decision.

Bad Faith Charged.

"At our meeting with the union representatives last week we suggested arbitration, which was rejected by the union men," said Widmer, "but J. L. Fritz, secretary of the Carpenters' District Council, promised to submit the question of arbitration to a mass meeting of the men for decision."

"The action will not affect our plans. We believe there are plenty of men willing to work for 95 cents an hour, and we shall insist that this be the maximum wage."

Fritz today denied that he left the contractors with the understanding he was to submit the question of arbitration to a vote.

"We told the contractors," he explained, "that if they withheld enforcement of the 95 cents an hour for 10 days, we would take back to our organization any proposal, including arbitration, they cared to make. They refused to grant an extension of time, and so we considered all negotiations off."

E. J. McMahon, executive secretary of the Master Builders' Association, issued a statement today for his organization in which it was set forth that the attitude of the contractors has not been changed by the vote yesterday. The opinion is expressed that there were only about a thousand men at the meeting, or about 30 per cent of the union membership, and that, as a secret ballot was not taken, the vote was not a fair expression of opinion. It is also stated that the 10 per cent reduction is not acceptable to the public, and that the contractors are still willing to submit the question to arbitration.

NURSE AGITATED ON LEARNING MOTHER KNOWS OF PLIGHT

Miss Stone Again Breaks Down Under Cross-Examination in Trial for Murder of Kinkead.

DENIES KNOWING FORMER U. S. ATTORNEY

Cincinnati Man Present to Testify Concerning Mann Act Charge She Is Said to Have Planned.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 3.—Agitated because she had learned her aged mother in Tompkinsville, Ky., had heard at last of her plight, Miss Olivia M. P. Stone again took the witness stand for further cross-examination today at her trial for the murder of Ellis Guy Kinkead, former corporation counsel of Cincinnati.

Assistant District Attorney Warbasse reopened his attack on her story of betrayal by Kinkead, by demanding whether she knew James K. Clark, former United States Attorney at Cincinnati.

"I don't know him, I don't know him," Miss Clark cried, bursting into tears.

"I'd rather you'd take my life than keep hounding me this way!"

Court was adjourned for 10 minutes while Miss Stone regained her composure.

Then Warbasse pointed out Clark, who sat in the courtroom, and repeated his question. Miss Stone insisted she did not know him.

Opening his case, Warbasse had indicated Clark would be asked to testify concerning the Mann act charge. Miss Stone sought to bring against Kinkead. Clark, he said, declined to press the charge, telling Miss Stone there was better ground for such a charge against her.

Miss Stone learned her mother had heard of the case last night when a letter of sympathy came from Tompkinsville. Attendees at Raymond street jail said the prisoner spent a bad night bemoaning the fact that she had been unable to keep news of her trouble from her mother.

GOV. SMALL DEMANDS THAT WOMEN BE PUT ON JURY

Challenges Lake County List Because Only Men Had Been Called to Try Conspiracy Case.

By the Associated Press.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., April 3.—Gov. Len Small today demanded that women sit on the jury which is to try him on charges of conspiracy to embezzle State funds. Through his attorneys he challenged the entire jury list of Lake County because only men had been called.

Attorney Werner Schroeder read an affidavit charging no women had been called for the jury, "thereby depriving said women voters of their inherent rights" to serve on the jury.

No effort has been made in Illinois to use women jurors in important cases. Schroeder cited the Nineteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution and argued that under the Constitution women were bound to place names of women voters in the jury box.

Admitting the question of their right to so serve had not yet been passed on by courts of Illinois, he cited decisions in other states where the courts have decided that all persons qualified to serve as electors are qualified as jurors.

The State obtained a continuance until Wednesday at 9:30 o'clock to prepare argument against the motion.

TWO AIRPLANES IN COLLISION NEAR HOUSTON; BOTH PILOTS DIED

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., April 3.—Two airplanes from Ellington Field were in collision near South Houston this morning and came down in flames. Both pilots were killed.

Maj. John W. Simons of Charleston, S. C., pilot of one plane, was burned to death, and Lieut. G. H. Fitzpatrick of Sacramento, Cal., pilot of the other, died a few minutes after the accident.

At the time of the accident about 15 planes were in the air engaged in maneuvers.

It is believed by those who were near the accident that the two planes were very near together and a sudden puff of wind drove them into a collision. Apparently the ruler of the plane piloted by Maj. Simons caught on a wing of Lieut. Fitzpatrick's plane.

TRANSATLANTIC FLYERS LONG OVERDUE ON WAY TO CAPE VERDE ISLANDS

LAS PALMAS, Canary Islands, April 3.

THE Portuguese aviators, Capt. Coutinho and Saccadura, resumed their hydro-airplane flight at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. They are bound for the Cape Verde Islands on the second leg of their 4000-mile journey from Lisbon to Rio Janeiro.

The Portuguese hydro-airplane left Lisbon on the morning of March 30, on the first leg of the flight to South America, covering 710 miles to Las Palmas in seven and one-half hours. The distance from Las Palmas to the Cape Verde Islands is 816 miles. The next leg, from Cape Verde to Fernando Naronha, near the coast of Brazil, measures 130 miles.

No report has been received since the aviators left Las Palmas.

Union Miners' Chief Declares Owners, Refusing to Meet Men to Make New Agree- ment, Broke Faith; Says Suspension Was Only Course for Workers.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Union coal miners who suspended work Saturday in the nation's bituminous and anthracite fields, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, declared today, any desirous of ending "the suspension of mining operations at the earliest possible date, but the resumption of coal production entirely depends upon the future attitude of the coal operators."

Lewis made this declaration before the House Labor Committee, which is holding hearings on the Lewis resolution to direct appointment by the President of a commission to investigate the coal industry. Discussing the resolution under consideration, the United Mine Workers' president asserted that his organization would welcome "any impartial and judicial investigation of the general conditions in the bituminous and anthracite coal industries, and especially the facts relating to investments and profits, operating practices, conservation of fuel resources, application of uniform methods of safeguarding the life and limb of the workers, and industrial relations and conditions."

Such an investigating body," he added, "should be clothed with full power to ascertain the truth, to send for persons and papers and to take testimony under oath. The personnel of such a commission should be free from political questions and the mine workers should be given adequate representation thereon."

"As to the adjustment of controversies between operators and mine workers, we have been traditionally opposed to governmental intervention," Lewis continued. "We have been convinced by experience that such adjustments may be more effectively made by the operators and the mine workers, and that both in the interest of the public and of those engaged in the industry, by conference and agreement between representatives of the operators and the mine workers, we have maintained their contract with us, the present deplorable condition of affairs in the soft coal industry could not have arisen. All difficulties should be settled by agreement and a general breakdown in the industry avoided. Our experience with labor adjustment boards or commissions has been that representatives of the public, not having knowledge of the technique of the coal mining industry and not being completely informed as to different conditions, as might be expected, are not in a position to reach as satisfactory conclusions as those that are actively engaged in the practical operation of the mines."

Says Operators Broke Faith.

"The United Mine Workers regret more than anyone else the necessity for a suspension of work by the union coal miners of the country. We have done everything humanly possible to avoid the suspension. For months past we have fought hard to induce the bituminous coal operators to keep faith with us and with the Government and meet us in a joint conference, so that a new wage and working agreement might be made that would maintain industrial peace and prevent public inconvenience."

"In a joint conference held in the City of New York on the 31st of March, 1920, a two-year agreement was signed, covering wages and working conditions in the mining industry for that period. In this agreement appears the following provision:

"Resolved, That an interstate

10 WHITE GIRLS FOUND AT HOME OF CHINESE

Drugs Seized in Raid in New York Chinatown District—White "Queen" Held.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 3.—After raiding an apartment house 7th street yesterday, detectives of the narcotic squad are today holding a white woman known as the "Queen of Chinatown" and her Chinese husband, and have seized a quantity of drugs valued at many thousands of dollars cached in a secret closet of their extensively furnished place.

Raiders declared they found 10 white girls living as the wives of Orientals in the house. The raid revealed, they said, one of the distributing centers for opium in the Chinatown district.

The "Queen of Chinatown," questioned by Dr. Carleton Simon, chief of the narcotic squad, disclosed a marriage with Chom Chu seven years ago, when she was 16.

Pretty and expensively attired, she told Dr. Simon she maintained three apartments but denied knowledge of the stores of drugs found in the 7th street place. The two were held pending a court hearing.

NATIONS TO ASK FOR LIBEL ON $75,000 FARM

Find Still in Only Building on 200-Acre Place in Riverview

Prohibition Supervisor Nations today announced he would apply for a libel on a 200-acre farm in Riverview Gardens, one-mile north of the city limits, which he values at $75,000, because he found that the only building on the farm, a two-room cottage, was being used for manufacture of corn whiskey.

Nations fell down a 15-foot embankment at 3 a. m., in searching for the still, and sprained an ankle. He arrested as operator of the still, Joseph Rabello, who twice previously has been arrested in connection with the operation of stills in St. Louis County.

The still found today, Nations said, had a stream of 180 proof liquor as big as a man's little finger flowing from it. In an excavation under the cottage were about 2500 gallons of mash.

The prohibition act provides for seizure of any property used exclusively for the illicit manufacture of liquor. Nations has not yet identified the owner of the farm.

RETRIAL IS GRANTED
TO PAUL WERNERCase in Which Defendant Said
He Believed Victim Was Robber, Set for May Term.

A new trial was granted today by Judge McElhinney of the Clayton Circuit Court to Paul Werner of 4257 Delor street, who was convicted Jan. 21 of manslaughter in the killing of Norman Miller, Oct. 24 last, and whose punishment was fixed at three years imprisonment. The case will be called at the May term of court. The killing of Miller occurred at Risch's Grove, in Luxembourg, and Werner's defense was that he shot Miller after he, Werner, had been attacked by Miller and another man who, he believed at the time, were trying to rob him. Miller was a filling station manager and lived at 2012 Rutger street. Werner, a maker of moving picture appliances, was formerly in the navy, and was a successful volunteer recruiting agent for the navy during the war, having nearly 1000 enlistments to his credit.

Judge McElhinney, in granting the motion for a new trial, said the State's attorneys had gone to improper lengths in their questioning of persons introduced by Werner as character witnesses. In cross-examining these witnesses, he said, matters irrelevant to the purpose of their testimony were brought in, and while the Court ruled out this inquiry, the lawyers referred to it later, and kept it in the minds of the jury.

Some of the questions asked, the Judge said, were "for no other purpose than to poison the minds of the jurors against the defendant and his witnesses, and were likely to have that effect." He expressed the belief that, for these reasons, the Supreme Court would reverse the conviction and remand the case if it were taken to that court on appeal.

MYSTERY IN DEATH OF ROOSEVELT CLEARED

Witness Found Who Saw Him Fall in Street, When Taxicab and Bus Ran Over Him.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 2.—The mystery in the death of Robert B. Roosevelt Jr. of Bay Shore, N. Y., from an accident in Columbus avenue Friday night, was cleared last night by Joseph Murray, physical director at the Yale Club, an eyewitness, who said he saw the 30-year-old son of the late President fall into the street in the path of a taxicab and municipal bus. Both cars passed over him. The accident occurred in a pouring rain. Murray said he assisted in carrying Roosevelt, second cousin of the former President, into a nearby restaurant, but did not know his identity.

Murray said he saw a man walking as if confused from the east to the west side of the street. "I never knew Mr. Roosevelt," he said. "Of course I did not know it was he. I saw the man grasp one of the pillars of the elevated railroad on the east side of the street. I walked on up Eighty-first street and waited there for a bus. "It was pouring rain and I am sure the driver did not have a chance to see the man fall or to stop before he reached him, even if he did see him. There was a bus immediately behind the taxicab. The bus was driven by David Zalkin, who has been arrested and held for homicide. Zalkin could not possibly have seen Mr. Roosevelt fall, as the taxicab was between him and the falling man. The taxicab and the bus passed over him."

Murray said there was no mystery as far as he was concerned and that he had made no attempt to conceal his identity.

LIVING COST RISE IRONIC APRIL FOOL JOKE FOR GERMANS

General Advance in Price of Necessaries at Berlin Announced on April 1.

BERLIN, April 2.—Berlin woke up to a new April food day maneuver Saturday, but it was no joke. Permission was given for rent increases of 10 per cent, gas was increased to 3 1/2 marks a meter, electricity from 4 to 6 marks an hour. Coal prices were raised 250 marks a ton, making the price now 1150 marks, street car fares went from 2 to 3 marks and taxicabs are allowed to collect 30 times the amount the meter reads instead of 20.

Doctors, dentists and other professional men raised their rates. A tax of 100 marks on ordinary dogs and 1000 marks on "luxury" dogs will be levied. A stein of beer, which before the war could be had for 20 pfennings, now costs 24 marks. German postage rates, which have been raised repeatedly for several months will be fixed at 4 marks for domestic letters. The country's correspondence has fallen off so greatly that there is a surplus of 21,000 mail clerks. They will be retained as Government employees, however, to collect the intricate new system of taxation.

The men printing Germany's billions of paper marks are threatening to strike because the Government wants them to work 44 hours a week instead of 44. The Government needs to have the printing process in operation for this lengthened period.

Insurance against illness and injury was offered the union if they would increase the time of work on Government paper money, but the union refused. Offers of welfare work improvements also were rejected.

RETAIL FOOD COST DECREASE IN 16 CITIES NOTED FOR MONTH

Detroit, Philadelphia, Rochester, Salt Lake City, Show Largest Reductions to March 15.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, April 2.—Food costs at retail continued to decrease in all of 16 principal American cities where observations are maintained by the Bureau of Labor during the month ending March 15, according to the monthly report issued today, the average of decline under Feb. 15 on the date given amounted to 3 per cent in Detroit, Philadelphia, Rochester, Salt Lake City and San Francisco, and 1 per cent in Chicago, Cincinnati, Columbus, Little Rock, Louisville, Mobile, Minneapolis, New Orleans and St. Paul.

For the year ending March 15, 1922, the department placed the total decrease in retail food prices at between 8 and 16 per cent, according to locality, but estimated that cost still remained from 20 to 40 per cent above 1913 levels.

MAN FOUND DEAD IN PUDDLE

Wife Discovers Illinois Farmer's Body in Few Inches of Water.

By the Associated Press. SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 2.—Owen Jacobs, 36, a farmer, was found dead in a puddle of water and mud only a few inches deep back of his barn at Roby, near here, yesterday. Examination disclosed that he had drowned. A bottle partly filled with liquor was found in his pocket. The body was found by his wife.

Jacobs drove to Bolivia last night. When he failed to return this morning, his wife went to the barn to see if his horses were there. Jacobs had placed the animals in the barn, but is believed to have fallen into the puddle shortly afterward.

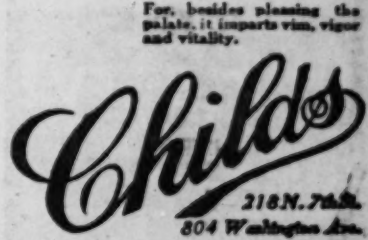

THE ADVANTAGE

"In their ancient predatory incursions into England," says Sinclair,

"The Scottish warriors fastened to their saddles a bag filled with oatmeal,

"Which gave them great advantage over an army whose wants were more numerous."

Deliciously creamy oatmeal still gives great advantage to its devotees at CHILDS.

For babies planning the future, it insures vim, vigor and vitality.

NINE-YEAR-OLD GIRL'S THIGH FRACTURED BY AUTO
Eight Persons Are Hurt as Result of Automobile Accidents.
Dorothy Schrieber, 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Schrieber, 1420 Hickory street, suffered a fractured thigh and scalp wounds at 4 p. m. yesterday when knocked down by an automobile driven by Gaston Tissot, 1411 South Fourteenth street, as she was crossing the street with her brother, Earl, 7 years old, at Park and Mississippi avenues.
Five persons were injured when an automobile driven by Benjamin Schmidt, 2191 Gravois avenue, was overturned in a double collision at King's Highway and Patterson avenue last night. The driver and Fred Schmidt, his wife and two children, Bessie, 6 years old, and Edward, 2 years old, were thrown to the street. Charles Hubert, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hubert of 2524 Delmar boulevard, was cut and bruised when knocked down by an automobile driven by Hyman P. Rudy, 1207 Franklin avenue, in front of his home.
James Weaver Jr., 2 years old, of 2920 Olive street, was cut on the head and face by glass broken from the windshield of an automobile driven by his father in a collision with a car driven by Albert Wiche, 4907 Fountain avenue, at Seventeenth and Locust streets.

MERAMEC OVERFLOWS AT SEVERAL PLACES; LOSSES SMALL Stream a Mile Across at Points Where It Usually Is Only a Block Wide.
Some property damage was done and persons residing along the Meramec River suffered losses, small in most instances, as a result of the stream rising rapidly yesterday and overflowing its banks at several places. It is believed the crest was reached last night and that, beginning this afternoon, the river gradually will recede, until by Wednesday it will again be in its normal channel, unless there is more rain.
At points between Valley Park and Castlewood, where at times during the summer the stream is only a block wide, it was almost a mile across yesterday, the water having run far inland, inundating the lowlands. At the beach near Moersch's Station the river stretched almost to the Frisco tracks.
Clubhouses around Castlewood were partly under water and persons there who care for canoes of St. Louisans were kept busy getting them out of storage places and tying them up in long strings together, so they would not float away. Some of the clubhouses and their contents were said to have been badly damaged by the high water.
Now and then a chicken could be seen, standing in melancholy fashion on a log or pile of brush, being swept down the swift current.

"STOPPED BILIOUS FEVER BY INTERNAL BATHS"
Mrs. Julia H. Pogue of Spring Springs, Texas, writes to Tyrrill Hygienic Institute of New York: "My nephew was subject to attacks which the Doctor pronounced bilious. He would become numb all over and break into profuse perspiration, followed by fever. He has used the 'J. R. L. Cascade' since last February, and he informs me that he has not had a single spell or felt in any but the best of health since using it. The 'J. R. L. Cascade' cleanses the lower intestine its entire length and keeps it always free of poisonous waste. Youth Confesses He Killed Man.
By the Associated Press.
BOISE, Idaho, April 2.—Max Welton, 19 years old, confessed that he killed George Lane, 35, in the latter's hardware store in Shoshone, Idaho, Saturday, according to officials of the sheriff's office. They said he attributed his desire to become a "bad man" to dime novels and sensational moving pictures.

News of the Business World

By Wire to the Post-Dispatch

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 2.—A building boom is developing in the cities of California, unemployment has ceased to be a problem in most places and money is easy. When the spring crops begin to move, the indications are that the improvement in the country districts will keep pace with that in the cities. A steady increase is noted in the volume of trade, although in some lines supply buyers still are proceeding cautiously. Good crops are expected with better than average prices. Packing corporations and State agricultural agents forecast bumper fruit yields.

There has been a remarkable revival of demand in the automobile business in the last few weeks. Used cars, which have been in plentiful supply, are about cleaned up and the sales of new machines by some companies have set records.

Strikes have checked the output of lumber in some of the Oregon and California camps and mills, but demand is increasing steadily and prices are firm. The surplus rice stocks here are being materially reduced. Rice association managers are getting better prices than were anticipated and the market is firm at higher rates.

The supplies of canned fruits on hand is small. Cannery agents find that farmers are not inclined to contract their crops in advance this year.

RAIN WELCOMED IN TEXAS.
FORT WORTH, Tex.—Continued rains in the Southwest have put a temporary damper on both retail and jobbing trade, but have served to increase the optimism among the farmers and stockmen in the last few days. Enough rain fell last week to assure stockmen at least a 60-day supply of water and range grazing for their herds and all drilling operations have been speeded up as a result of the increased water supply. Planting of crops in all the agricultural districts will be begun this week. The soil is in better shape than at any time since 1919.

Although merchants in general report a slight falling off in trade, they also report improvement in collections. A desire to pay off old debts is manifest, they say. The grain crops will be ready for harvesting in about 60 days, which will enable them to fulfill this desire. Cattle trading has been resumed on a larger scale and prices for steers are ranging from $50 to $55 a head. Loans to member banks of the Federal Reserve System in the Southwest are showing an increase. This money, for the most part, is going to farmers and stockmen.

LOSS IN NEW ENGLAND.
BOSTON.—Business as a whole in New England lost ground in March. Textile trades, boots and shoes, which were the bright spots last fall, have steadily grown less active. The strike at the cotton mills in its third month and there is no indicated settlement in sight. It is estimated there are 100,000 men out of work as a result of labor disputes at the Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Lawrence, Mass., mills. Although President Wood of the American Woolen Co. has promised employees that there would be no wage reduction this season, the pay envelopes of the workers in the woolen mills have been growing smaller because some of the mills are on only part time schedules. The market for wools is not active and worsteds are selling poorly.

Shoe companies report that salesmen on the road are taking orders only for immediate delivery. Ordinarily at this time of year they would be booking orders for fall, but apparently merchants are in no mood to order ahead.

GENERAL TOPICS.
LANSING, Mich.—March freight shipments from this point were the largest in several months, according to Pere Marquette officials. A new freight house and additional trackage are planned to care for growing traffic, caused by several new factories and resumption of work in automotive and allied industries of the city.

PHILADELPHIA.—It is expected that Philadelphia will spend about $100,000 this year in an effort to increase the business of this city as a port both in foreign and coastwise trade. An effort will be made in common with Baltimore to retain the differentials which are in effect over the ports of Boston and New York and to obtain the elimination of the differential in favor of the Gulf ports, which it is claimed, diverts traffic from the middle west to Galveston and New Orleans, which normally would come here for transshipment to Europe.

DRUGS.
ST. PAUL, Minn.—Twin City dealers report a better demand for drugs and chemicals than at any time in the last six months.

BRASS.
PITTSBURGH, Pa.—The McKenna Brass Co. is operating its plant over time in an effort to keep up with the new volume of new business. Important orders from South America have been received. When prohibition went into effect the company stopped making liquor cocks, but the demand has increased to such an extent that it cannot fill all the orders offered.

GLASS.
MORGANTOWN, W. Va.—The local plant of the Mississippi Glass Co. has been closed for repairs.

DETROIT, Mich.—The Rickenbacker automobile plant is producing 20 cars a day. Orders from over all the country indicate that this will have to be increased shortly, according to B. F. Veeritt, the president.

PAPER.
ESCANABA, Mich.—Paper mills here, after an idleness of several months, have resumed work in both the pulp and paper divisions. About 400 men are affected and a critical unemployment situation has been partially solved.

YOUTH CAUGHT AFTER GROCERY IS ROBBED

Another Drops Sack of Cigars and Escapes—Proprietor Says He Got $17.

Two youths who robbed the grocery of Harris G. Thompson, 119 North Theresa avenue, were leaving the store at 2:40 a. m. today, when they saw a Sergeant and two policemen approaching.

The youths ran, and the policemen followed, firing six shots, and capturing one of them, who said he was Wilford Aubuchon, 18 years old, and lived in St. Louis County. He said, according to the police, that the other man got the money from the cash register—the proprietor says $17 was taken—and that he was acting as lookout. In leaving the place, the other man dropped a sack loaded with cigars and other articles taken from the store.

A youth who said he was Lester Baletine, 18, of 221 North Channing avenue, was caught by a policeman at 2:15 a. m. yesterday, as he was leaving a poolroom at 3229 Olive street. The police say he had made his way, through an aperture in the wall which had been boarded up, from the poolroom into an adjoining saloon, and that he was working over a safe in the saloon when policemen observed him. The youth was wearing tight kid gloves, which would prevent the leaving of finger prints.

ARMED ROBBERS HOLD UP TRAIN IN OLD-TIME WESTERN STYLE

By the Associated Press.
POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., April 2.—Robbers early yesterday held up a New York Central freight train south of Chelsea Station, 12 miles from here, ordered the train crew to detach the engine and broke the seals of six cars. The demands were backed up at the point of revolvers. While railroad authorities confirmed the theory of police officers that the thieves evidently had intended to hold up a train usually loaded with valuable silks, which had passed through Chelsea earlier, they were unable to give any estimate of the amount or value of the goods believed to have been stolen. The engine was sent several miles up the road, while the robbers went through the cars. Telephone wires along the road were cut.

NEW YORK, April 3.—Arrival of the last of America's 70,000 war dead was commemorated at Brooklyn yesterday.

One body, that of Private Charles W. Graves of Rome, Ga., symbolized, at the time, the bodies of the 1064 soldiers which were returned from France last week on the United States troop ship Cambrai.

Amid the hushed vastnesses of an army pier, his 1664 silent comrades, in long, unbroken ranks of the flag-draped caskets, maintained the bivouac of the dead, while sorrowing thousands, of high and low degree, paid the last respects of a grateful nation.

His body, enthroned on a gun caisson and drawn by six horses, had been borne through the ranks of silent multitudes. Generals had saluted the flag which wrapped him. Hundreds of his comrades had marched beside him. Guns had boomed in his honor, statesmen had eulogized his deeds, mothers had wept over him, and "taps," the soldiers' farewell, had given him god-speed.

The body of Private Graves had been chosen to receive the honors of the day because he, of the 1065 aboard the troop ship, was the last to be taken from the dead and placed on his native soil.

Cordon of Honor.
Private Graves' body, in a gray felt casket, was mounted on a horse-drawn gun caisson, the army band, before the caisson rode a detachment of mounted police.

A squad of privates of the Thirty-fourth Infantry formed a cordon of honor. Behind them marched the honorary pallbearers—Commanders Robert P. Forshaw, Brigadier-General Charles I. Debevoise, Franklin W. Ward, Palmer E. Pierce, James W. Lester, Dr. Witt Weld, William W. West and Capt. James Vossberg. Hundreds of flagbearers followed, holding aloft the many-colored emblems of 150 organizations that had sent service at the front. With them in platoon formation marched regiments of soldiers, sailors, marines and nurses, each with its regimental band or drum corps. And, swelling the procession, were other thousands of the American Legion, veterans of foreign wars, the Civil War, the Spanish-American war, and uniformed women veterans of the Red Cross and other welfare service.

As the funeral cortege neared Fort Hamilton Parkway, army and navy bombing planes swooped low over the caisson, releasing cargoes of flowers over the bier of Private Graves and the other nation's heroes which the President had presented in behalf of the nation.

The President's Tribute.
With the flowers, the President sent the message to Col. W. A. Simmons, master of the ceremonies: "You and your associates are going to voice the last testimony of love and affection from living comrades to their dead. You may say that the whole nation will echo your sentiments, and feel with you the thrill of a common pride and a common sorrow—pride in the glorious service and historic achievements of these, our brothers, who freely gave their all to the service of their country."

Impressive List of Speakers.
Funeral services over the body were held in the gray-walled inclosure of the army base, where chairs had been placed for 5000 gold-star mothers and their escorts.

The speakers included Assistant Secretary of War Matthew Wainwright, Vice Admiral Hilary P. Jones, commander of the Atlantic fleet, and Major-General John A. Lathrop, representing the Marine Corps. Gov. Harry L. Davis of Ohio, Gov. Everett J. Lake of Connecticut, Gov. Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey, Senators Calder of New York, Fernald of Maine, Harris of Georgia, Pennington of Missouri and Broussard of Louisiana, several United States Representatives, Archbishop Hayes, Bishop P. S. Gailor and the Rev. Dr. Joseph Silverman.

Only the occasional sobs of bereaved mothers, widows and fathers broke the stillness which enveloped the throng while the program was in progress. And when, at the close of his address, Assistant Secretary of War Wainwright bowed toward the flower-decked caisson and said: "Hallowed dead, we salute you. Sweet be your deathless sleep. You live with the immortals. Hall and farewell," a score of women fainted and were carried from the scene by soldiers.

Bolsheviki Dammed Rising Tide
of Russian People's Energies,
Kropotkin Told Emma Goldman

He Considered the Russian Revolution in Its Possibilities Greater Than the French, With the People Responsive to New Arrangements of Life.

Miss Goldman is writing this series from Russia fresh from a two years' stay in the mysterious land which she has just succeeded in quitting. After being barred from several other countries through the influence of the Bolsheviki she has been permitted to enter Sweden. It will be recalled that the writer, who is known throughout the world as an anarchist, was deported to Russia together with Alexander Berkman by order of the Department of Labor in December, 1919.

By EMMA GOLDMAN.
Copyright by Pulitzer and by Press Publishing Companies, 1922.
(The New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, March.—During the second visit to Peter Kropotkin we had an hour together. In that time Peter spoke in detail of the Russian revolution, the part played by the Bolsheviki, the lesson to the anarchists, in particular, and the future in general. He considered the Russian revolution in scope and possibilities greater than the French revolution. While it is true that the people were not developed in the Western sense, yet they are more responsive to new arrangements of life. The spirit of the masses during the February and October revolutions demonstrated that they understood the great changes waiting their concerted efforts, and they were willing to do their share.

The people knew that something tremendous was before them, which they themselves must face, organize and direct. That spirit, though now fettered by hunger, privation and persecution, is yet very much alive. The dogged resistance offered by the people of Russia to the Bolsheviki yoke is the best proof of that. The Bolsheviki in their march to power were far from being the advance guard of the revolution, as they claim. On the contrary, they were the dam which had thrown back the rising tide of the people's energies.

In their fixed idea that only a dictatorship can direct and protect the revolution, they were about strengthening the formidable state which is now crushing the revolution. As Marxists they never have, nor will they ever, realize that the only protection of the revolution lies in the ability of the people to organize their own economic life. For the rest, Kropotkin added he had set forth his views on the Russian revolution in his letter to the workers of Europe, which was, I believe, widely published.

Despite His Privations He Showed
No Bitterness to the Bolsheviki

Kropotkin also spoke of the part the anarchists played in the revolution, of the death of some, the heroic struggle of many, the irresponsibility of the few. Above all, he emphasized the need for all the anarchists to be better equipped for reconstructive work during the revolution. I distinctly remember these words: "We anarchists have talked much about the social revolution. But how many have ever taken pains to prepare for the actual work during and after the revolution? The Russian revolution has demonstrated the impracticability of such preparation for practical reconstructive work."

In a letter to one of his closest friends, Kropotkin wrote that he had come to see in syndicalism the economic basis of anarchism. In other words, the medium for the economic organization and expression of the energies of the people during the revolutionary period.

It was a memorable day. Alas, the last I was ever to spend with him. He died of a heart attack on the morning of his death. He was called to take care of him during his last illness I reached Dmitroff an hour after his death. The usual bureaucratic confusion, inefficiency and delay robbed me of the opportunity to see him. However, I was fortunate to have lived in more than one room. During part of 1918 and all of 1919, Kropotkin wrote his ethics by the flicker of a lamp that nearly blinded him.

During the short hours of the day he would transcribe his notes on a typewriter, slowly and painfully. His own handwriting was illegible. It was not his own discomfort which sapped Kropotkin's strength. It was the hardships of Russia, the suffering about him, the suppression of his ideas, the persecution of his friends, the imprisonment for opinion sake, the endless razzle of people, which weighed on him.

Two things had struck me in Kropotkin on both visits: The lack of bitterness toward the Bolsheviki, and the fact that he never alluded to his own hardships and privations. It was only after his death that I learned a few details of his life under the Bolsheviki regime. In the early part of 1918, Kropotkin had grouped around him some of the ablest specialists in various branches of political economy. The purpose was to make a careful study of the economic resources of Russia, and to compile these resources.

Kropotkin was the editor in chief of that undertaking. One volume was prepared, but never published. The Federalist League, an anarchist group was known, was broken up by the Government, and all the material confiscated.

On two occasions the Kropotkins apartments were requisitioned, and the family forced to find other quarters. It was after all these experiences that the Kropotkins moved to Dmitroff, where he became an involuntary exile. Even in the summer it was difficult to visit him. Special permission had to be procured to travel, and that involved much effort and time. In the winter it was almost altogether impossible. Thus he, who had in the past gathered to his home the best minds in thought and ideas from every land, was now forced to the life of a recluse.

Only Peasant Visitors.
His only visitors were unfortunate peasants, workers of his village and some of the intelligentsia who would come to him with their daily misfortunes. I remember that the evening of our visit Kropotkin had received a letter from an old friend, a man in Moscow. The man was living with his wife and two children in one room. Only a small lamp was lighting up the family table at which the children had come to do their homework. He had been employed at a place 12 versts from home and had to walk that daily.

HOUGHTON'S VIEW
OF U. S. ATTITUDE TOWARD GERMANY

Address Delivered in New York by New Ambassador Before Sailing for His Post.

SPEECH HAD BEEN APPROVED BY HARDING

Doesn't Believe in the Moral or Spiritual or Even the Economic Value of Hate, He Says.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 3.—Alanson B. Houghton, newly appointed Ambassador to Germany, at a farewell dinner in his honor, given at the Metropolitan Club Thursday night delivered a striking speech that may be interpreted as the official definition of our attitude toward the German Republic.

In advance of its utterance the Ambassador submitted the speech to the President, who gave it the same warm approval that it received from the 65 prominent men of affairs who heard it as the guests of former Senator William J. Borah. Houghton, a man from a Northern State, arose and pointed a long, monitory finger at the speaker inquired if he was referring to "those traitors, Lee and Jackson?" And in just one instant that House became a bedlam. It divided instinctively into North and South. And North and South started once more to make war on one another.

Laugh Ended Episode.
"Someone laughed, and the tension was broken and the episode ended as quickly as it had begun. But think of it! Nearly 60 years have passed away and the grandchildren of those who wore the blue or the gray cannot now discuss the war as a bedlam. It divided instinctively into North and South. And North and South started once more to make war on one another."

He was educated in Germany. Houghton, who has served in Congress, and who was educated in Germany, sailed for that country this morning on the Olympic, our first Ambassador to Germany, at a farewell dinner in his honor, given at the Metropolitan Club Thursday night delivered a striking speech that may be interpreted as the official definition of our attitude toward the German Republic.

He thanked you, gentlemen, for your kindly greeting. I thank you, Mr. Butler, for your eloquent and inspiring and generous message. In particular, sir, may I express my gratification that you have not addressed me as I have been addressed in the United States—namely, as a traitor. That may, perhaps, strike as a meaningless sentiment. But if you had attended as many functions during the past few weeks as I—if you had been talking to me at from a certain standpoint as often as I have been—you would realize better what I mean.

I confess that only recently have I understood me so much of the war as it is being waged in the United States. I have been considering myself fortunate to have lived in more than one room. During part of 1918 and all of 1919, Kropotkin wrote his ethics by the flicker of a lamp that nearly blinded him.

During the short hours of the day he would transcribe his notes on a typewriter, slowly and painfully. His own handwriting was illegible. It was not his own discomfort which sapped Kropotkin's strength. It was the hardships of Russia, the suffering about him, the suppression of his ideas, the persecution of his friends, the imprisonment for opinion sake, the endless razzle of people, which weighed on him.

an inspiration to me as long as I shall live."

German Papers Hail Houghton As "Peace Ambassador."
By the Associated Press.
BERLIN, April 3.—The remarks of Alanson B. Houghton, American Ambassador to Germany on the occasion of the farewell dinner tendered him last week previously to his departure for Berlin, are given unusual prominence by the German newspapers.

Some of the newspapers hail Houghton as a "peace Ambassador" whose sentiments accord him a "heartily welcome." The Lokal Anzeiger, the industrialist organ, says: "The new Ambassador's utterances afford a pleasing contrast to the hateful and venomous forensic products of some of our other former foes. We trust Mr. Houghton will be able to carry out the White House policies which are reflected in his declaration."

"Mr. Houghton's words," says the Vossische Zeitung, "may count on a favorable reception, not only because of their sympathetic sentiments, but chiefly because of the fundamental significance involved in the positive manner in which he rejects discussion of the question of war guilt as expressed in the Versailles treaty. We may not be able to agree over the issues of the past, but this should not prevent an understanding on the problems of the future."

The parallel is not exact. But frankly, it does seem to me that a similar process of practical reconciliation must be worked out or European civilization, at least, will perish. If the warring peoples cannot forget—and we may concede they cannot—can we at least work out the common conviction that whatever other values the war may have established, it left us all poorer, and they must. No choice is given them. We must get on with us. And until that disposition is shown, the world will remain bound and helpless in its misery.

"If you ask me how this better condition can be brought about, I answer that it can only come as a result of the efforts of the men of good will in each of the warring countries to farm the heaven which shall leave the mass."

Must Do Our Part.
"And I believe they must make the effort a conscientious duty. It is as much our national duty as it is the duty of the other nations. But, gentlemen, it is even more. It is a personal duty—duty which each of us should to the limit of his power, perform, not sometime, but now. I hope this does not strike you as mere sentimentality. I am not consciously looking at the hard and stubborn facts ahead of us in a sentimental way. To me it seems more a common sense. To me it seems the only way out. And to that end we Americans must do our part."

And now, Mr. Tully and gentlemen, let me bid you "adieu." I am sure that I am keenly aware of the responsibility that rests upon me. Be sure that no one recognizes more clearly than I the difficulties and discouragements that must be met. And, as I go I can carry with me your good wishes and good will and possibly in some measure your confidence, the memory of this evening will strengthen me in the ways ahead and remain

WHITE SLAVE CONVENTION OF LEAGUE IS REJECTED

Hughes Says Measure Conflicts With Police Regulations of Some States.
By the Associated Press.
GENEVA, April 3.—The United States Government is unable to sign the white-slave convention drawn up by the last assembly of the League of Nations, as it conflicts with the police regulations of certain states.

The Union, Secretary of State Hughes has notified the league secretary here. The American Government, however, is in full sympathy with the object of the convention, and Congress has passed laws to the same end, Hughes points out.

BARGE LINE HANDICAPPED BY UNJUST RAIL EXACTIONS FROM JOINT RATE, NEWTON CHARGES

Roads Accused of "Frightful Discrimination" in Taking 97 Per Cent of Joint Revenue for 40 Per Cent of Service.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
20 Wyatt Building.
WASHINGTON, April 3.—In a recent speech in Congress Representative Cleveland Newton of St. Louis, chairman of the "river bloc" which last week made a successful fight to add $5,000,000 to the budget allotted for rivers and harbors during the next fiscal year, said that the heaviest handicap under which the Mississippi barge line was laboring was the railroads' exaction of an unjust proportion of the revenue derived from joint rail-and-water traffic. He gave numerous concrete instances of what he termed a "frightful discrimination" against the barge line. In some cases, he said, the railroads collected 97 per cent of the joint rate for performing 40 per cent of the service.

If there is discrimination, the Interstate Commerce Commission, as Newton pointed out, has the power to remedy it. Friends of the barge line, and of waterway transportation in general, are asking why the commission has not acted. The answer to this, on behalf of the commission, is that the complaint of the barge line, asking for the establishment of a new method of dividing joint revenues, has required the submission of voluminous testimony before an examiner of the commission whose report, recently completed, has been attacked in bills of exceptions both by the barge line and the railroads affected.

The complaint was filed in October, 1920, and was amended in the following January. Hearings have been held by the examiner both at St. Louis and New Orleans. The mass of testimony on both sides had to be digested and analyzed by the examiner in preparation for the writing of his report. Further delay has been occasioned, it is said, by postponements granted at the request of the barge line.

Pressing for a Decision.
It is admitted, however, that the barge line is now pressing for a decision. This cannot be had until after the case has been argued before the commission. Up to date the hearings have been before an examiner, whose report may or may not be accepted as the decision of the commission. "No one is to blame for the long time this case has taken," today said Col. T. Q. Ashburn, head of the inland and coastwise waterways service of the Army, who is probably more eager than anybody else to get the case settled. "Certainly the Commission is not to blame for the case is not yet before it. The application of the barge line is a matter of time to go into the matter thoroughly. Another hearing will be held in Chicago on April 13, and following this I look for the case to come on for argument before the commission."

New Questions in Rate-Making.
Col. Ashburn added, in further accounting for the delay, that the case opened up new questions in rate-making, for the settlement of which there were no precedents in the Commission's findings. "If the Interstate Commerce Commission, when the case finally gets before it, holds against the barge line, the reasons presented by the examiner, F. W. McMillan, in his report, Woodrow, though upholding the barge line, on some points, and to a certain extent, has caused his report to be vigorously attacked by the railroads—ruled against the main contention of the line, which was that divisions of revenue should be made between the water line and connecting railroads on a mileage basis."

Section of I. C. C. Act Cited.
The rail carriers could voluntarily adopt a mileage, pro-rata basis if they saw fit, said Woodrow, but the commission was prohibited from making divisions strictly on that basis without regard to other considerations. He cited that section of the interstate commerce act which provides that in determining the divisions of joint rates the commission shall give "due consideration" to the relative value of the services rendered, the character of the service, the cost of delivering line, and to any other fact or circumstance which would ordinarily without regard to the mileage paid entitle one carrier to a greater or less proportion than another carrier of the joint rate, fare or charge.

The most significant words here, according to the examiner's report, are "without regard to the mileage haul." "It is evident," the report said, "that this section applies alike to the establishment of all-rail and joint water-and-rail divisions and that therefore the commission, in establishing joint rates, has no jurisdiction, has to be governed thereby."

Present System of Divisions.
The report pointed out that the present system of divisions between the barge line and the railroads was inherited from the railroad administration. The principle on which this system is based is that the rail carrier, in any division of revenue on traffic delivered to it by the barge line, shall receive as much as if the traffic had been delivered by another rail carrier. It was held by the railroad administration—and the same principle has now been affirmed by Examiner Woodrow—that the railroads should not be made to suffer loss of revenue through the handling of water-borne freight. Manifestly, since the barge line maintains a 20 per cent rate differential under the rail rate, but is compelled to share revenue with the rail lines on the basis of all-rail divisions, the railroads operating jointly with the barge line receive a greater proportion of the joint rate than they would receive if the traffic were handled by two rail lines.

Complaint of Barge Line.
The barge line contended in its complaint, as paraphrased in the examiner's report, that under the present divisions of revenue its operation could only be continued at a financial loss; that it had no voice in the establishment of these divisions; that the divisions were forced upon it by Railroad Administration officials just prior to the removal of the roads to private control, these officials having formerly been and subsequently having again become railroad officials, and that unless equitable divisions were established the country would be deprived of a system of transportation to which it was entitled and which Congress had declared should be fostered.

In his report, Woodrow recognized the fact that the barge line is now a part of the transportation system of the country and should be fostered accordingly by the Interstate Commerce Commission. But he asserted that in providing it sufficient revenue, the railroads should not be made to deplete their own revenue. He emphasized that "a considerable portion of the barge line's business is port-to-port traffic, and that the commission has no jurisdiction over the rates charged thereon." Each class of traffic (meaning port-to-port traffic, wholly water-borne, and joint rail-and-water traffic), the examiner said, should produce its relative share of revenue. He added that "rail carriers cannot defect water transportation by establishing unreasonably low rates, because the commission now has the power to provide minimum all-rail rates."

Increase in Rail Rates.
In an interview with the correspondent, Woodrow made the point that since the drafting of his report, the Interstate Commerce Commission, following a long hearing at Memphis, had ordered an increase averaging 25 per cent on rail rates paralleling the rise in river rates. If it maintained its 20 per cent differential, Woodrow said, the barge line would therefore be in a position measurably to increase its revenues. He pointed out, however, that the Interstate Commerce Commission, by exercise of its authority to fix minimum all-rail rates, both could and would prevent outburst competition by the barge line to wipe out waterway lines. Woodrow thought that the decision was a sufficient answer to Newton's charges of discrimination in favor of the railroads. Many of the commission's divisions should be made on a mileage basis.

No Attempt to Defend Divisions.
Woodrow, in his report, did not attempt to defend all the existing all-rail divisions—the divisions which the barge line is compelled to accept—but said on the contrary that some of them might be unreasonable when applied to the barge line. These divisions, he said, were based on numerous considerations, having been "finally determined after every conceivable argument made by each rail carrier to obtain for itself larger all-rail divisions." Many of them had been in existence for 20 or more years and generally they seemed to satisfy the rail carriers.

Circuitous Routes as Factor.
He did not think that the commission, under the law requiring that consideration be given to various factors "without regard to the mileage haul," would be justified in upsetting the present system as a whole in favor of the barge line's contention that divisions should be made on a strictly a mileage basis. Such divisions as worked a hardship on the barge line, he said, could be made matters for separate adjustment between the barge line and the railroad concerned, or, failing an agreement, could be brought to the attention of the commission. The record, he said, did not contain sufficient evidence for the commission to pass upon the reasonableness of the whole existing basis of divisions as applied to water-and-rail traffic.

COMBING WON'T RID HAIR OF DANDRUFF

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

San Francisco Where East meets West

A breath from the Orient tempers this modern city. Moored to its docks are great ocean liners, tramps, South Sea traders. Along this water front one may hear the creak of the windlass—the guttural notes of a Lascar crew—the bellowing of a "shell-backed" mate—the music of the sea.

In contrast are the gayly lighted thoroughfares—the cafes and theaters—parks and boulevards—the merry whirl of a pleasure loving metropolis.

San Francisco has a mesmeric charm—you long to know it better; and yet no matter how frequently you visit it, the atmosphere of mystery and romance remains.

Follow the Overland Trail to San Francisco—route of Union Pacific trains—see the Rockies, Weber Canyon, Great Salt Lake, High Sierra, American River Canyon, and Sacramento's "Days of '49" celebration, May 23-28. Side trips to Yellowstone and Yosemite National Parks at slight additional cost.

FEARS FARM DRAINAGE MIGHT POLLUTE WATER

Proposed Plan for Feeble-Minded Institution Protested Against by Commissioner.

The possible danger of the city's water supply becoming polluted if proposed plans for the drainage of the Scott Municipal Farm for the feeble-minded are carried out was pointed out by Water Commissioner Wall in a letter Saturday to Director of Public Utilities Hooke, copies of which have been forwarded to the Mayor and the members of the Board of Public Service.

The board has under consideration a plan for the discharge of the sewage, after artificial purification, through Watkins Creek into the Mississippi River at a point above the intake tower of the city waterworks.

Commissioner Wall expresses the opinion that the effluent should be emptied into the river through Moline Creek at a point below the intake tower, where there will be no danger of any part of it entering the city's water supply.

"If the city should undertake to dispose of sewage, treated or untreated, in such a manner as possibly to pollute the source of the city's water supply, the action would be altogether inexcusable," Commissioner Hooke stated. "No scheme of sewage purification ever was devised to work automatically so that the effluent would always be perfectly harmless."

"It is the duty of the city to see that the entire stretch of the Mississippi, particularly that near the west bank, is never contaminated by any sewage other than that from agricultural districts. If the territory surrounding the Scott farm should develop into a suburban residential district the city would be in duty bound to see that the sewage is diverted so that it is carried into the river below the intake tower. To object on the ground of cost would be a great mistake. The city cannot set a price on human health."

A purification plant, such as is being planned, he stated in the letter, must be operated by skilled men of technical education, and even then there will be no assurance that the effluent will be always perfectly harmless.

The United States Health Service, together with municipal boards of health, are engaged in an extensive study of increased pollution of streams used jointly as carriers of sewage and sources of water supply.

Commissioner Wall stated, and the result of this study will be a recommendation to Congress for a systematic means for relieving pollution of these streams.

Engineer W. W. Horner of the Board of Public Service stated that the present plans call for the installation of a purification plant to cost about $11,000 and that Watkins Creek provides a natural drainage extending three miles before the effluent enters the Mississippi. He said that the use of Moline Creek would necessitate the laying of 1500 feet of sewer pipe and would not provide a natural flow. However, he said, the matter would be up to the Board of Public Service.

NEW APPEAL MADE IN Y. W. C. A. CAMPAIGN

Only $25,872 Has Been Obtained So Far in Drive for $120,000.

Y. W. C. A. campaign returns have been so discouraging that the future program of the association is threatened unless the people of the city rally to the support of the organization within the next few days. Mrs. James W. Lee, campaign chairman, said yesterday: "A statement has been issued by Mrs. Lee calling urgently upon the citizens of St. Louis for support in view of the fact that only $25,872 has been obtained toward the $120,000 goal in the past week's solicitation. The statement is, in part, as follows: "The future usefulness of the St. Louis Y. W. C. A. is at stake in the present campaign. Funds obtained to date will not pay half of the current debts which are pressing us at the present moment. Much less provide for this year's work for the girls of the city. To close the doors of the St. Louis Y. W. C. A. or curtail its program of activities which has already been cut to the rock bottom minimum would be a reflection on the civic spirit of St. Louis. "Other cities are standing back of their Y. W. C. A.'s, even through a period of business depression when it means real sacrifice, and indeed it is in times like this that our girls are most in need of the service that is offered by the Y. W. C. A. Certainly St. Louis girls are worth the best that the city can give. "Kansas City, which is not half as large as St. Louis, and is in the midst of a local political campaign which is occupying the center of interest, launched a Y. W. C. A. campaign for $50,000 maintenance the same night as St. Louis, and at the Friday noon meeting had a total of $25,617.77 in hand with splendid prospects of reaching the goal by the middle of next week. We have only $25,872 toward a $120,000 goal. Surely St. Louis will not fall behind Kansas City in support of such a worthwhile project. $120,000 is a small amount for a city of almost a million people, and little enough to give for the girls of our city. We must not forget that it is the individual girl, in many cases without friends, without a place to live, without a job who will be affected by lack of support in this campaign. "Remember the girl!" will be the keynote struck in the redoubled efforts to be made within the next few days.

BOLSHEVIK DAMMED RISING TIDE OF RUSSIAN PEOPLE'S ENERGIES, KROPOTKIN SAYS

would never forgive them for such a barbaric method. The second protest was made in reply to the attempt the Government was making at "liquidating" all publishing undertakings, whether political, co-operative or private. This protest was addressed to the Presidium of the then sitting Eighth All-Russian Congress of Soviets. It is interesting to note that Gorky, himself an official of the Commissariat of Education, had sent almost on the same day from Petrograd a similar protest.

Monopoly of Thought.
Kropotkin, in his statement, called attention to the danger of such a policy to all progress, in fact to all thought. Such state monopoly on thought would make creative work utterly impossible. The situation in Russia during the last four years has given ample proof of that.

One of the striking characteristics of Peter Kropotkin was his reticence in everything concerning himself. In my stay of 25 hours at his Dniepropetrovsk home, while his body lay in death, I learned more of his personal life than during all the years I had known him. But few even of his immediate circle knew that Peter Alexievich was an artist and a musician of considerable talent. Among his effects I discovered a whole collection of his drawings of great merit.

He loved music passionately and was himself a musician of no mean ability. He spent much of his leisure moments at the piano. No doubt he was able to find some forgetfulness and peace in the masters whose works he rendered with deep understanding.

He lay in his workroom as if peacefully asleep, his face as tender in death as it had been in life. There he lay, this great son of Russia. Through strife and stress he had remained true to the revolution and would not forsake it. He did not live to see capitalism in Russia erected as a monument upon the grave of the revolution. But even that would not have robbed him of his fervent faith in the resurrection of the people, the ultimate triumph of a libertarian revolution.

National Home Builders' Loan Plan.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, April 2.—A plan for the formation of a national $15,000,000 financing corporation to loan money to home builders on second mortgages will be discussed at the meeting of the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association here this week. It was announced yesterday. Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, is expected to address the convention Tuesday.

Shall They Suffer

As you did from film on teeth

Pepsodent is largely for the coming generation. It brings to adults whiter teeth, new protection. But to children it means a new dental era.

Your teeth, perhaps, have always been film-coated, save right after dental cleaning. The luster has been dimmed by film. Film has caused decay, no doubt, despite your daily brushing.

Now dental authorities urge you to fight film. Above all, have your children fight it daily in this scientific way.

How troubles come

Modern science traces most tooth troubles to a film—to that viscous film you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays.

The ordinary tooth paste does not end it. Much is left intact. Night and day that clinging film threatens damage to the teeth.

That is why well-brushed teeth discolor and decay. That is why tooth troubles have been constantly increasing.

Makes teeth dingy

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. Film is the basis of tartar.

It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Germs breed by millions in it. Pyorrhea, and many other serious troubles, are chiefly caused by those germs and by tartar.

Dental science has for years been seeking a way to daily combat that film. It is the teeth's great enemy.

Two ways now found

Two effective film combatants have been found. Able authorities have subjected them to many careful tests. Dental science now approves them, and leading dentists, here and abroad, urge their daily use.

A new-day tooth paste has been perfected, complying with modern requirements. It is called Pepsodent. And these two film-combating methods are embodied in it.

Also starch deposits

Starch deposits also attack teeth. In fermenting they form acids.

Nature puts a starch digestant in the saliva. It puts alkalis there to neutralize the acids.

Pepsodent multiplies that starch di-gestant, also the alkalinity. Thus Nature's teeth-protecting forces are multiplied.

Thus twice a day, in all these ways, Pepsodent combats the enemies of teeth.

Millions of people now use Pepsodent, largely by dental advice. Any one who once employs it can see and feel its need.

Watch the added beauty

Send the coupon for a ten-day test. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

The lasting benefits appear more slowly. But all who love clean, glistening teeth will see effects at once. And the book we send explains the reasons for them.

The glistening teeth you see everywhere now are largely due to Pepsodent. Learn how you can attain them. Cut out the coupon now.

VOLUMES have been written on the best way to equip a factory with the most up-to-date machinery available. Sufficient space and proper lighting all have an important place, but how the work itself affects the girl who is employed in this factory is of even greater importance.

You can waste through volumes of statistics and find that all of this improvement in factory equipment has done much to lessen sickness and greatly control the accident rate. But recently I visited several plants employing thousands of girls of all races and ages and I asked the one in charge of their physical well-being just what one thing she would blame more than any other for the cause of illness among those girls.

Without a moment of hesitation she answered, "diet."

Then she showed me the modern cafeteria with all of its well balanced food daintily served to the girls and she said: "You see, we have charge of only one meal a day, their luncheon, and that is chosen from the best food and to give them a light, nourishing diet which will keep them fit for their work. But the majority of these girls come from homes where the one in charge prepares foods that satisfy the hunger but do not contain the elements necessary to build up a body that is under strain continually, as must be the case with the girl employed for factory work."

Examination of the new employee is compulsory, but unless the girl watches herself very carefully not only at her work but in her hours of freedom she will find that her health is undermined, not by the work she is compelled to do, but because she has not learned to adjust herself to her occupation, or does not receive the proper food to keep her in trim, or dissipates her strength in recreations that rob her of sleep and give her, instead of stimulants, bodily fatigue. I wish to bring home this truth to every girl at this work.

The work in a factory is of many different kinds, some requiring tedious application to monotonous routine, others the quick eye and ready hand at the loom. Some duties are performed standing, and some are performed sitting and some vary, but whatever your work is, you must learn to acquire habits of movement that mean not only efficiency in the execution of your task, but efficiency of movement of the body, so that there shall be the minimum amount of fatigue and strain.

In no other field is it so necessary for a girl to watch just how she moves as she performs each task so as to equally develop her body. If we have a number of cases where the girl's health has been impaired while employed at factory work, you immediately say "change the occupation." But this is a mistaken idea because in most cases it is a change of habit of work in the girl herself, that needs the adjusting more than placing her in another occupation.

Fatigue is not only determined by the number of hours of work or by the number of days each week, but depends to a great degree upon the character of the work. For instance, a girl engaged in the process of weaving may have the care of 12 or more looms at a time and this of a necessity requires rapidity of movement and concentration. So also with the girl who has piecework. In her efforts to turn out the largest amount of work she is very likely to acquire little faulty habits in pushing the work under the power machine or in otherwise arranging her tasks in a manner that continually strains one side of the body, and an adjustment of herself to her tasks will greatly lessen the fatigue, benefit her health and stop nerve tension.

I stopped in a busy factory beside the machine of a man and then beside the machines of several girls to note the difference in the way in which they handled their work. The women seemed to have a greater tendency to bend over at the task. This causes a more congested position and endangers not only the internal organs but cramps the lungs when they should have full freedom. While at work, if you stand and sit properly at your machine, if you draw your work closer to you instead of bending over toward it you will find that you will soon gain in rapidity with less fatigue.

The girl who works for a large concern is much more liable to be working under proper conditions than one whose work is in a smaller factory. The lighting probably will not be as correctly adjusted, because, you know, it is not only the volume of the light but the adjusting of the light on your work that saves eyestrain and nerve tension. Especially is this true with factory work that is done at home.

If you wish to keep your health you must take as good care of yourself as does the employer of thousands, for if the good health of his employee is worth so much to him it is worth infinitely more to you. The rank and file of the factory girls come from humble homes and they must sleep in a well-ventilated room and they must have the proper kind of foods if they want to look forward to a happy, healthy wifehood and motherhood. But instead of thinking of these things, too often the whistle for closing simply means release from one kind of labor to take up strenuous recreation, perhaps dancing until the wee hours of the morning, and then they wonder why they have the "all-gone tired feeling."

Don't misunderstand me. Proper dancing under the right circumstances is a wonderful beautifier of the body, but a good brisk walk in the open air is essential to the health of a girl who has been confined indoors all day. At least do not spend every night in a closed place of amusement. And remember, also, that to relax the mind from the monotony of your toil there is nothing so pleasing as change as a study of some kind, preferably one along your own line of work, which will give you a more intelligent understanding of what you are producing. This will give you an interest in your work and an incentive, which acts like magic in shortening the hours of your toil as well as in helping you to advance to a higher position.

The modern factory conditions and hours of employment are such that if the girl is normally healthy and takes the proper care of herself she should not feel the strain any more in this line of endeavor than any other. So it really rests with yourself how to do your work, what you eat, how you plan your hours of recreation, whether you are going to keep your good health, your good looks, and your happy outlook on life, or whether the busy loom, the noise of the machinery and environment of the factory are going to ruin your health and depress your spirit.

A Loveless Marriage

The Absorbing Story of a Woman's Heart

By RUBY M. AYRES.

(Copyright, 1922.)

SIXTEENTH INSTALLMENT.
I was Richard Tempest.
He stood staring at me as if I were a ghost.
"Have I altered so much?" I asked him. "Why do you stare at me so?"
He put up his hand and touched my hair. I wore no hat.
"What have they done to you?" I wondered. "I am not dead," I told him. "Oh, Richard, I have lost my boy; I have lost my boy!"
I began to sob helplessly.
He did not answer for a moment, then he put his hand through my arm in the old kindly protecting manner which I could still remember.

"You will get wet through," he said gravely. "Can you run? There is a shed in the field."
I obeyed him, the tears blinding me, big sobs choking my throat.
He stood beside me, staring out across the sea. Presently:
"It's useless to say 'I'm sorry,' he said. 'I—what can I say to you, Marjorie?'"
I sobbed out the whole story to him. I tried not to blame my husband, but I'm afraid he must have read for himself all that I did not say; for I saw his face darken, and his big brows meet in a frown.

"I don't know what to say to you," he said again. "How can any words of mine comfort you?"
But he had comforted me; for the first time I had been able to unburden myself to someone who really understood and sympathized. I dried my eyes resolutely.
Richard pushed the door. Once, when the thunder crashed overhead, it felt as if the whole shed must fall about our ears; the lightning penetrated the cracks in the rough boarding like slits of burning fire. Richard looked at me.
We were no longer young, my hair was gray, but in my heart I was still only the girl who had loved him.

The storm died away, and a wet, apologetic-looking sun, still out from behind the black clouds, and smiled at the earth as if asking forgiveness for having been frightened away.

Richard rose to his feet, drawing me up with him.
"How fresh everything smells," I said. "And how glad the earth must be."

He opened the door, and we stood looking out at the sea and sky.
"I think we might venture now," I said. I gathered my skirt round me, and looked at the wet grass, and then at Richard.

"I'm afraid there's no other way back," he said, answering the question in my eyes. "You'll have to change when you get in." He pushed the half-closed door wider, but it swung back and would have struck my shoulder had he not pulled it away. To do so, he put his arm round me, and—he did not take it away.

WAS it very wicked of me, I wondered afterwards, to give myself up to the happiness of that little moment? At all my life I had starved for love; all my life I had hope and dream I had cherished had been snatched from me.

For a moment I closed my eyes and stood motionless. I could feel his breath on my cheek, then he let me go and stepped out into the wet grass.

"It's not raining at all now," he said, and his voice sounded odd and sharp.
I followed him blindly, and we went back to the village hardly speaking, not daring to look at each other.

I showed him the cottage where I was staying, and he told me he had put up at the one little inn the village boasted.

"I am staying a day or two; perhaps we shall meet again," he said. And I answered:
"Yes; perhaps we shall."
I could not meet his eyes, but I was happy because I knew that it was virtually impossible for two people to live in the same village and never come across each other.

And we met again that very evening, down on the sands when the tide was in, and the rocks lay glistening in the sunset.

And we walked along with the keen salt breeze stinging our faces, and we talked of the old days, and all that had happened to us since we had last met, and I told him about Elsa in Paris, and what a gay time she was having.

"Really—I am going to Paris myself next month—I may see something of her," he said. "Whom do you say she was staying with?"
I told him that the people were named Farley, but he did not seem to know them, and I was conscious of a silly throb of gratification. How could I ever be jealous of my own daughter? The thought was absurd.

RICHARD walked back with me to my cottage. My modest supper was laid in the small front sitting room, and the window was wide open, showing the shaded lamp and the pictures and the white cloth on the table.

Richard looked at it rather wistfully.
"Does—does Farnival ever come down here?" he asked.

It was the first time my husband's name had been mentioned between us.
"No," I said. "Oh, no—Francis hates the country as much as I love it."

We stood in silence for a moment; the narrow garden was all dark; the white stones that bordered the flower beds gleamed through the grayness; the scent of roses filled the air.
"I must go in now," I said, and held out my hand.
But Richard did not take it—he stood looking at me; though the scented summer night—I felt, rather than saw his eyes—then all at once he caught me in his arms.

I could not have resisted had I wished, and—alas, I did not wish, all my will power seemed to have gone; my heart felt swooning for very joy in my breast.

All my life I had longed for him to kiss me—he kissed me now again and again, passionately, without speaking; his kisses seemed to take all the breath from my body; then he let me go, only holding my hands in his.

"I couldn't help it," he stammered. "All my life I've waited to kiss you. Forgive me—I couldn't help it. I've loved you all your life. You didn't guess it perhaps, but I've loved you from the moment when I left you sitting there in the long grass when I was only a schoolboy. I went away because I was ashamed for wanting to stay—Marjorie—Marjorie!"

His voice was only a whisper; he bent his head and kissed my hands. We walked up and down that tiny garden for hours in the dusk; sometimes his arm was round my waist—once my head lay on his shoulder. I think it must nearly have been 11 o'clock when at last he kissed me good night.

I went into my room dazed and giddy with happiness.

The memory of his kisses made my heart throb; I undressed in the dark because I felt I could not bear a light; then I lay down trembling and afraid, and—ashamed!

I thought of my son, and wondered miserably what he would think of his mother if he knew; and I began to weep broken-heartedly. I was ashamed to the depths of my being. I would have given a great deal to wipe out the memory of that night, and yet—it was something to live on—something to treasure.

DON'T judge me too harshly, you good, happily married women, to whom there is nobody in the world like the man who kisses you good-by in the morning and kisses you again when he comes home at night.

I have never known quiet, sane, happy love like that.

I had promised Richard to see him again in the morning, but long before the hour appointed I was up and dressed and speeding back to London.

My only safety lay in flight; I dared not even write to him, because I knew I should say too much. I just—fled!

And he never wrote to me—not a word, though for days and days I watched for the post, and longed and hoped, and almost prayed.

Then one day I had a letter from Elsa in Paris.
She told me how many new tricks she had bought—her father was absurdly generous with her in the matter of money. He said he knew you should have had from different men.

"But there's only one I really and truly like," she added. "He's much older than I am, but he's a dear, and so handsome. He says he knew you when you were a girl, and came to Nascot House once to see us when I was quite small—his name is Richard Tempest!"

When Elsa came back from Paris she could talk about nothing but Richard.

Apparently he had taken her about a great deal, and given her presents, and she had fallen violently in love with him, as girls in their teens are apt to fall in love with men many years their senior.

They had met at the house of a friend—Elsa told me all about it in detail; the fact that I had known him years ago seemed to give her a sudden and most unusual interest in me. She asked me thousands of questions about him; what had he been like as a boy? Where had he met her? Had I seen much of him? Why had he never married?

I answered everything as well as I could, but oh! how difficult it was. (Continued in the Post-Dispatch.)

After-Dinner Tricks

No. 55—Anti-Gravity Cigarette.

An astonishing feat is to lay the tip of a cigarette on the edge of the table with the remainder hanging over the edge and leave it balanced there.

The cigarette must previously be prepared. Remove some of the tobacco and insert a short piece of metal at the tip. Then replace enough tobacco to make the cigarette appear ordinary. Naturally, the weight of the cigarette is now all at one end, and it can easily be balanced as described above.

MACARONI WITH CHEESE

TWO cups broken macaroni, 5 cups boiling water, 1 good-sized onion, 1/4 pound American cheese, 2 tablespoons flour, 3 tablespoons margarin, 3 cubes chicken or beef bouillon, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, paprika. Boil the macaroni in the water in which have been dissolved the cubes of bouillon. Fry the sliced onion in 1 tablespoon of margarin and add to the boiling macaroni. When done, drain off the liquor, thicken this with the flour and margarin cooked together, and add the salt, pepper, Worcestershire and the cheese, either grated or cut in small shavings. When the cheese is melted, mix the macaroni into this gravy, sprinkle with paprika, and serve.

THE RHYTHM OPTIMIZER

By Aline M. Wright's plan. In all the books I have read, the hero is always quite sure to make a splendid name and vanquish every wrong. I know him by his haughty air and his nifty suit; we know him by his riding boots and his riding habit. It is quite another stunt to be the hero out, for he may be a savior, but he may weigh 300 pounds and have a hairless pate, so none can look on any grounds that he is a hero of great. And that's what wears a hero's face. It makes it daily joy to wonder as he ruffs upon his wrist and his satin shoes, and when he is in the flat, the villainous villain may be a knight in dark disguise, wider by a span, but the dreads no foe and feels no fear. His feathers fall, for he is a hero.

MY FAVORITE STORIES

A STICKLER FOR THE TRUTH.

I HAVE a friend who practices law in the Florida courts and deals in citrus fruit on the side. One day he was on his way in a car from his groves to his home in Miami. On the road he overtook a lank native who seemingly was in a high state of indignation, muttering to himself as he trudged along and clenching and unclenching his freckled fists.

The lawyer stopped and offered to give him a lift. "I ain't goin' so very far," said the stranger as he climbed into the buggy, "but I can't get to what I'm goin' a minute too soon. There's a feller livin' down the road here a piece by the name of Ed Watts, an' jest this mornin' the word come to me that yistiddy, in town, he told a gang of fellers I was a low-down, hawg-stealin', wife-beatin', alg-suckin' cur dawg."

"So I'm on my way to his place to settle it with him. When we git thar you stop while I go in, an' then you better jest watch to see what I'm goin' to do to him."

Presently they came to a cabin set among straggly fruit trees. A very large, very strong looking man sat on a doorstep busily engaged in doing nothing at all.

"Stop right here!" commanded the aggrieved person. "Thar's that thar Watts yonder. Now, mister, jest you keep your eye on me!"

From the car my friend watched while his late passenger dismounted and marched toward the front door of the cabin. At his approach the larger man unclothed himself to a height of considerably more than six feet, at the same time moistening the palms of his two brawny hands after the approved fashion.

The two men exchanged a few words; then, with the air of having satisfactorily accomplished a difficult but necessary piece of business, the invader turned about and returned to where the car stood in the road.

"Wall," he said, "that's all settled."

"What happened?" inquired my friend.

"I axed him ef he'd said what them fellers told me he'd done said, and he come out like a man an' owned up that he hed. Ef he'd a-dened it I'd a-beat him half to death."

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

By James J. Montague.

THE AIRSHIP.

Alert and keen, and sternly proud,
He glides across the azure airway.
To dive, head on, through yonder cloud
That slowly drifts below the stairway.
A speck upon the vaulted dome,
With every watch-tick still receding,
He views the fading spires of home,
But holds his skyward course, unheeding.

Now fast and faster comes his breath,
As like a rocket he goes sailing
And battles, unafraid, with death
Beyond the upper half-way railing.
One sudden gust, one fatal slip,
And, half an awful minute later,
To earth a crashed and fluttering ship
Will plunge a fearless aviator.

But past the trouble zone he soars,
To volplane down, with easy motion,
Toward where the surf line marks the shores
That curve about the rocking ocean.
The engine stops—one long, smooth sweep,
With spray the trailing smoke is blended—
He settles gently on the deep,
And lo! the daring voyage is ended.

He briskly taxis up the bay,
To seek his mooring in the river,
Observing in a casual way,
"Good airship that! One trusty flier."

And we, who stood below the stair,
Where we were told to take our station,
Saw but a child, beside a chair—
But then WE lack imagination!
